Mona Lisa brings smiles

Smiles: seven-year-old Montana Daniells and eight-year-old Jarrod Sumpter will be among the art students displaying their works in Mona Lisa Smiles.

Taking a lesson from the old art masters, students from Corridor 13’s art initiative and U Can Doo will be showcasing their talent in a display of Mona Lisa replicas.

Ranging in age and technique, the students will show their pencil drawings in Mona Lisa Smiles at U Can Doo on Saturday, December 15, from 10am to 3pm.

There will be nearly 70 pieces on show by students between four and 16.

While Leonardo Da Vinci may not be available to critique the work himself, there will be a Peoples’ Choice Award on the day where people can nominate their favourite artist.

Some works will even be available for sale at negotiable prices with 10 per cent of each sale and gold coin entry to go towards children in need through Corridor 13.
