There is always something exciting happening at Friendship Stop. This week's news is that we now have our very own puppet theatre. I thought I'd try my paw at acting with some of my Foundation friends. I'm a natural pawformer!

Above: I arrived in the library half way through 6M's session. After greeting everyone, I plonked myself down next to some of my Grade 6 friends and we did 'Read to Someone'. Well, to be precise, I did 'Listen to Someone' as I haven't quite mastered the art of reading aloud YET.

Something strange happened last Saturday...I came to school! I was surprised to discover that lots of other people came to school too. It was our KPS Open Morning. I helped our student leaders show future families around the school. They took small groups on a tour and answered questions about KPS. I did a bit of touring and a lot of sleeping.

Overheard this week...
"Asha, you have the smoothest head. Maybe it's from all the pats?"
"Did you see me run? Can you run as fast as me?"
"Why are you licking the concrete, Asha?"
"Your ears are pretty big. Soft and big."
