

Hello everyone!

A short week at school for us all this week. Hope you enjoyed your loooooong weekend. I had a little sleep in and then visited a local market. Some of my KPS friends had the same idea because I saw them at the market! Two of my KPS friends were buying chickens. I wasn't allowed to buy a chicken but I was allowed to visit a doggy treat stall. The lady at the stall asked me if I was a good boy. I said 'Yes!' and was rewarded with a little doggy biscuit.

This week I've spent lots of time in the yard, welcomed some new students to KPS, played in the sandpit, supawvised netball training, helped at a Techie Brekkie and been to School Council. It's been a busy week!

Mr Thompson and his team of 'techsperts' ran a 'Techie Brekkie'. I went along with the teachers. I went mainly for the Brekkie part. However, I did quite like one of the robots. He looked just like my tennis ball...but with a little head and a mind of his own as he kept running away from me.

Asha's Adventures

It was hard work not eating the robot and I needed to have a power nap.

My Grade 3 - 6 friends have been learning about coding and programming in their ICT lessons. I think they enjoyed teaching their teachers at the Techie Brekkie.

Above: I love it when people come to show me their work. My Grade 6 friends visited to show me an information report about fidget spinners written in free choice writing time.

Below: Homework Club happens every Tuesday in the library after school. It's a great way to get your homework done and have any questions answered. I can't answer many questions but there is always a teacher (or two) ready to help.

Above: Spending time in the yard is one of my favourite things about school. You'll often see me in the yard before and after school as well as at recess and lunch time. Yesterday I helped do yard duty on the basketball court.

Left: School Council meets two or three times each term. I went along this week. I'd like to say I stayed awake for the whole meeting and did lots of note taking. But, I didn't. I stayed awake for about ten minutes and did lots of snoring.

I've heard some more things which made me smile.
"Asha, do you have eyebrows?" Yes.
"Do you ever wear socks, Asha?" No.
